

CITY OF HOUSTON
INTEROFFICE CORRESPONDENCE

TO: Council Member Oliver Pennington

FROM: Director of Aviation

DATE: May 1, 2012

SUBJECT: Response to Memo “Proposed International Terminal at Hobby Airport: Additional Information Request”

Thank you for providing the Houston Airport System with the opportunity to address your questions fully and clarify some points made by United. You will find detailed responses to your individual questions in this communication, and if you have any further questions, I will be happy to answer them personally for you.

- i. A list of airlines serving IAH and Hobby (HOU) airports along with the destinations they serve.

Please see the attached list of air service for both airports.

- ii. The passenger traffic for each of the airlines for the previous 5 years.

Please see the attached historical traffic data for all carriers at both airports.

- iii. An estimate of increased or decreased passenger traffic for the 12 months after the commencement of international service at Hobby, together with an estimate of the jobs lost in Council District B and other areas affected both directly and indirectly.

From Page 28 of Technical Appendices:

The presence of new services at Houston Hobby would alter and expand the range of travel choices available to potential travelers in the markets served. While the total impact of these changes for Houston is an increase in passengers at both Houston Bush Intercontinental and Houston Hobby, the modeling and stimulation tools used in this analysis divided this overall passenger response into conceptually distinct segments of response. These include the diversion of passengers from existing services at Houston Bush Intercontinental and other U.S. gateways to the new flights projected to be offered at Houston Hobby, as well as the stimulation of passenger traffic at all of these airports providing connecting international services to Mexico, the Caribbean, Central America and northern South America due to lower fares and increase service options; it also includes the recapture of passenger traffic at Houston Bush Intercontinental. Taken together, these aggregate to the overall passenger response to the changed market circumstances.

Stimulation of the Initial Phase Scenario at Houston Hobby (12 daily nonstops projected to 6 international markets by 3 airlines) would result in a diversion of nearly 565,000 annual passengers who currently travel through Houston Bush Intercontinental or a competing hub in another city (nearly 282,000 annual passengers from IAH). Due to the changed market conditions, Houston Bush Intercontinental would recover nearly 446,300 passengers from their fair share of stimulated traffic, resulting in a net addition of approximately 164,000 passengers in these markets for Houston Bush Intercontinental.

Exhibit 1-16: Total HAS Incremental Passengers – Initial Phase Scenario

Source of Passengers	Number of Passengers
IAH Diversion	282,243
Diversion from Non-Houston Airports	282,800
Total Diversion	565,043
Price Stimulation	152,286
Service Stimulation	129,184
Total Passengers	846,514
IAH Estimated Recapture from Stimulation	446,260
Net Passenger Traffic Change at IAH	164,017
Total Incremental Passengers to Houston Airports¹	1,010,531

As the outcome for IAH is a NET GAIN of passengers due to market and price stimulation, the study anticipates no impact to jobs in District B (which includes IAH).

- iv. The number of passengers connecting from the Caribbean, Mexican and other Latin American routes through IAH, and the projected change in those passenger numbers if international service is commenced at Hobby.

The study provides results on market diversion and market recapture to assess the total net change for the City of Houston (cumulative of local and connecting passengers). This recapture analysis was based on fair share QSI for each airport. As illustrated in Exhibit 1-16 from the Technical Appendices, the incremental passenger traffic for the Initial Phase would be over 1 million. [FYI, exhibit 1-16 provided for the previous question.]

- v. The projected passenger traffic, based upon actual numbers from comparable airports, with the opening of international service at Hobby.

InterVISTAS stimulation calculations were developed through both price elasticity and market stimulation. In order to be conservative, InterVISTAS constrained stimulation through traffic spill analysis and the subsequent recapture analysis. InterVISTAS used the historical stimulation at other airports (such as Miami/Fort Lauderdale, shown below) to validate its stimulation assumptions. The forecast projects incremental passenger traffic of over 1 million annually in the Initial Phase (2015) and 1.5 million annually in the Developed Phase (2018).

- vi. A description of the method of financing estimated $100 million cost of the FIS at Hobby Airport and a comparison of it to the financing at IAH for international service.

The financing and other specifics of the proposed alignment will be incorporated in any deal to be presented and approved by City Council.

For your information, the Terminal B project at IAH is for United’s exclusive use and will be built, owned and controlled by United. This structure was insisted upon by United, which has repeatedly rejected investments at IAH for public facilities through an increase in the PFC rate. At every other large and medium hub airport across the country save for less than a handful, the PFC is set at $4.50, compared to the $3.00 at IAH. Atlanta and Dallas Fort Worth have both been collecting a $4.50 PFC for decades. This has enabled these airports to invest in the airport public infrastructure to make them the envy of Houston.

- vii. If the FIS is financed by Airport Revenue bonds, what is the source of payment? Will airlines other than Southwest be considered beneficiaries of the facilities to be constructed for the international service as well as for the connecting service? Will an RFP be issued to offer the new facilities to airlines other than Southwest and, if so, can others be accommodated? Will there be competition to Southwest for domestic services? These questions are particularly important as most people who favor the Southwest proposal do so to promote competition. We need to be confident there is real competition at Hobby before we expend public funds.

See answer to vi above

You also asked in your memo that we address some of the comments that were raised by United in response to my April 9th memo titled “Recommendation of Southwest Airlines’ Request for Expansion of Federal Inspection Facilities at William P. Hobby Airport”. You will find my responses to United’s comments on the attached document.

I appreciate the ongoing dialogue regarding the Hobby international opportunity, and make myself available to answer any further questions you may have regarding my recommendations.
